

PRIVATE SECTOR LED ECONOMY – UN IN THE STATE OF KUWAIT

Webinar Report
29 July 2020

BACKGROUND, AGENDA AND SPEAKERS

United Nations State of Kuwait: Private Sector Led Economy UN75Talks Webinar

This year marks the 75 years anniversary of establishing the United Nations and in January 2020, the United Nations launched a global dialogue initiative under the series of discussions called UN 75Talks, these discussions target different topics and audiences, from climate change to economy and from world leaders to public and minority groups and in different settings, from classrooms to boardrooms across the world, in order to reach as many people as possible to build partnerships with civil societies, media, businesses and youth.

UN office Kuwait has successfully held different talks throughout the year. This July, the Office of the United Nations Resident Coordinator will hold the first private sector dialogue out of 4 webinar series which will target universal sustainable principles, and the importance of increasing engagement of the private sectors in supporting the UN Sustainable Development Goals, help build a better Kuwait and sustained communities in support of Kuwait Vision 2035

Background and Overview:

Kuwait's efforts in shifting the economy from public sector-led, and resource – dominated economy to private sector knowledge – based innovation led economy has been visible in recent years. Through the implementation of the strategies set in the National Development Plan, Kuwait aims to transform the country into a financial, trading, cultural and institutional centre in the region towards the new Kuwait vision 2035. Moreover, Kuwait has the necessary tools to implement their new vision given its robust financial reserves, its strategic location, in addition to its entrepreneurial initiatives and culture. However, the impact of the pandemic of COVID-19 and the resulting economic crisis calls for a more strategic and dynamic partnerships, which is needed more than ever.

The United Nations Global Compact (<https://www.unglobalcompact.org/>) is a voluntary initiative where more than 10,000 companies have committed to align their strategies and operations with ten universal principles addressing human rights, labour, anti-corruption and environment taking actions to achieve their goals.

For the last 20 years, the Global Compact has mobilized a global movement of sustainable companies and private sector stakeholders in 156 countries, united for a better world with an emphasis on collaboration and innovation.

INTRODUCTION

The office of the United Nations Secretary-General Representative and Resident Coordinator in the State of Kuwait, in partnership with the General Secretariat of the Supreme Council for Planning and Development, organized the seventh session of the UN75Talk Dialogue series titled “Private Sector-Led Economy” in cooperation with Kuwait Investment Company, the National Fund for Small and Medium Enterprises Development, Real Estate Union, Zain Telecom in Kuwait, Gulf Bank and Baker Hughes. This symposium is one of the four webinars that will address the private sector opportunities and challenges in general, due to the implications of the COVID-19 pandemic.

SUMMARY OF EVENT

In Kuwait, as in many countries around the world, the closures of schools, colleges and universities highlighted the growing digital divide through stark disparities in access to technology and connectivity for students and educators alike. Households with no or limited internet connectivity, and no or only one computer, struggled to ensure learning continued at home especially if those families included more than one school-aged child.

The UN75 Talk on Education took stock of the current education situation in Kuwait and, with support of education partners and stakeholders, identified opportunities and map out recommendations to address them. This Talk also drew lessons, insights and perspectives from speakers and panellists, as well as other participants with a view to helping the State of Kuwait develop and/or enhance its ongoing response to education disruptions.

ROUNDTABLE SESSION

The roundtable was held in three sections, following a guiding question from the moderator. The summary of discussion of each is presented below:

A. The current challenges facing the private sector due to the impact of COVID-19, regaining the private sector position after the pandemic

- Legislation and technical competencies

Appropriate legislation regarding the business laws must be implemented. Much of the current law is considered old or inadequate, such as the BOT system<sup>1</sup>, which is difficult for the private sector to utilize.

- Technical awareness and competencies are required in the public sector, as technical issues may arise when implementing public projects, such as healthcare infrastructure.

- Adjusting demographics and reducing the number of expatriates is not an easy task as it is highly technical and there is no possibility to cover the existing gaps in operational competencies for the market employment. Therefore, it is essential to consider this point by the government before moving ahead with any decision.

- There is a culture of suspicion in Kuwait in terms of developing new businesses, which generated Kuwait's attributes, including integrity and financial control authorities, these authorities may create an extra layer of bureaucracy or redundancy.

- Regaining the private sector position post pandemic

- The pandemic negatively affected the economy and the private sector projects in Kuwait, indicating that the private sector is unable to regain its economic position for multiple reasons. One implication of the current pandemic is the immigration halt into the country, and migrants returning to their homeland across all sectors. Loss of employment and the stringent measures implemented to combat the spread of COVID-19 have resulted in many migrants considering living in Kuwait as unsustainable. With the fall in oil prices and a subsequent negative impact on the economy, the development process will be delayed.

- Real-Estate sector

As for the Real-estate sector, which is an essential source of revenue and income in the economy, there is a steady decline in demand due to expatriate exit. This aspect must be studied to achieve Kuwait's Vision 2035 effectively.

- The northern region of the country has been neglected for a while. Progress in different projects was not measured correctly from a political perspective either. The private sector did not discover any new projects to embark on, yet they have many attributes and capabilities as a sector; however, the government did not consider the opinion.

- Economic Effect

Kuwait has endured two crises during the first two quarters of the year; the economic effects of the COVID-19 pandemic; second, the drastic drop in oil prices, particularly in Kuwait's amount and cost of exported oil. Furthermore, the most affected companies during this crisis are those in the small and medium enterprises (SMEs) category, as they have been affected by up to 95%.

- Kuwait is one of the few countries that does not have a Minister of Economy. The issue is considered ineffective for both the public and private sectors.

- Sectors are experiencing an unusual situation, due to the COVID-19 pandemic and the drop-in oil prices. As a result, companies had to disregard certain cadres of residents and expatriates. However, with the return of oil prices after the new agreements with OPEC, the employment rate is projected to increase.

- The Education Sector

- Kuwait's public education sector decided to cease all lessons at the beginning of the crisis, due to its inability to provide distance-learning education and the general lack of experienced teachers in dealing with sudden curriculum changes, unlike the private education sector, which successfully converted school curriculums to distance-learning formats and was able to graduate students.

- Zain Telecom is keen on cooperation between the government and the private sector in the education and health sectors. It prides itself as a pioneer in technology and offers many services to support distance-learning education.

- Innovation

The National Fund for small and medium businesses is keen to provide responsibility in overlooking several matters of interest, including food security, health, industry, and trade, to promote entrepreneurs' roles in these areas

- the Fund signed an agreement with “Agility”, a logistics company, to establish an electronic platform to advertise the products of small and medium businesses that became inaccessible during the total and partial curfews, this is an example of future initiatives resulting from Social COVID-19 responsibility between the private sector and the government.

- Zain Telecom is a pioneer in digital transformation and includes distance-learning education and remote work platforms. Zain Telecom staff worked remotely from the initial announcement of the pandemic in Kuwait.

- Employment

- One of Baker Hughes' strategies is to facilitate nationalization of management by 2035, with Kuwaiti labor operating technical and management positions and departments.

- The oil sector highlights the need for equal employment between men and women. It's still challenging for women to enter the oil sector as women currently represent 20% of the workforce.

The company aspires to reach 50% and to embrace foreign and multinational companies' cultures, to integrate them more into the local Arab culture.

- As for Gulf Bank, the banking sector plays an essential role in this crisis by supporting small and medium enterprises (SMEs). Technological services are crucial more than ever to reach our customers with ease and ensure the best service. Following up on our staff members, we have carefully checked on the existing cases. We have been keen to meet their needs in the previous period; in the end, it's a mutual responsibility.

“The session was very open and showed great transparency and fairness; it was very satisfactory” – participant.

“It was great to take part in this session, and I look forward to future cooperation,” - speaker.

REMARKS BY DR. KHALED MAHDI SECRETARY-GENERAL OF THE SUPREME COUNCIL FOR PLANNING AND DEVELOPMENT

- With the vision launch of His Highness and the development plan, the first indication of challenges and difficulties that the state recognizes is in operational matters. Kuwait faces an implementation problem, which relates to government capacity, size, and its understanding. Sometimes the government sector hinders the development process.

- Regarding national plans and its development; There are indicators developed from international indicators; there are also aspects pending for review and others that are already developed; however, we need to build a road map for future generations and capacity building.

- As for education, Kuwait spends a lot of money on education, but outcomes remain modest. The government sector remains in need of modernization by restructuring and development.

- The first step for private sector led economy is the allocation of public resources to privatization. The Supreme Council for planning and development adopted the project in 2007-2010 and this was implemented since then.

- The General Secretariat for Planning is working on setting transformational policies to move from rentier policies to more productive systems. At the same time, we need to build the capacity within the public sector to achieve this goal.

- As for housing welfare and the real estate sector, the General Secretariat with the Residential Care authority recently established a real estate initiative and development for the areas of Jaber Al-Ahmad and Sabah Al-Ahmad. Unfortunately, some existing laws can slow this development as they have a more bureaucratic approach which requires a cycle between different institutions and ministries for approval and processing.

- As for the Stock Exchange, it became a private company when the Capital Market Authority saturated it and set regulatory and monitoring frameworks for it, including the Governance framework, so resources become easy to allocate.

- As for small and medium enterprises (SMEs), they account for a mere 3% of the GDP, yet the goal is to reach 30%. Kuwait has not yet achieved this figure as employment issues have hindered the achievement of this goal.

- As for employment and demography; The government regards demographics as labor market capacity and qualifications. Resolving the imbalance in it and the quality of employment ensuring that the recruitment process is mainly for qualified labor. Kuwaiti youth are encouraged to bridge the skills gap within the labor market. Therefore, we call on enhancing the public sector's educational system to have better skilled and competent graduates which will pave the way to the localization of Kuwaiti competency in the private sector.

B- Leading knowledge-based innovation, economic development, and multilateral partnerships

- Education & Innovation

focusing on training and qualifying Kuwaiti teachers is crucial in addition to regulating specific existing policies and laws. The private sector can play a vital role in the provision of teaching methods and facilitate partnerships with schools and universities from abroad. Ensuring appropriate professionals are in the correct educational positions is paramount. One of the obstacles faced in Kuwait is misinterpretation and confusion regarding the current existing laws in general. Therefore, it's essential to create a committee to review and analyze these existing laws and amend or modify them based on current needs.

- Zain Telecom started supporting Kuwaiti youth in 2010 in the scientific domain. Specifically “Zain Great Idea” to train, educate, and qualifies young people to enter the labor market. So far, 1500, young men and women have been qualified to enter the labor market. The most important aspect of this strategy is the small and medium enterprises (SMEs) category.

- as for Kuwait investment Company, the need to support and partner with the public sector is not encouraging, the private sector schools are not being supported or empowered by the government as The Minister of Education is facing public pressure from the National Assembly and others, forcing him to reduce fees of private schools

- The Kuwait Investment Company has sponsored the Makerfair exhibition for the past four consecutive years, also known as the International Manufacturers Show. This exhibition has welcomed more than 1000 Kuwaiti young women and men and presented innovative projects and industries that exceed those of global equivalents. The private sector continues to support education and development, but no further progress can occur if we do not enhance the education system.

- The cost of education in Kuwait in the government sector is approximately 15000 Kuwaiti Dinars per student. The average cost for a student in private schools is almost 2000 – 2500 Kuwaiti Dinars.

C- Partnerships for a sustainable and resilient economic future

- As a private oil company, Baker Hughes' support might not be visible, but their assistance has been reaching different cadres since 2018. Citizens have a three-year development program that advances their skills from a general to specialized competence which will enable them to swiftly enter the oil sector.

- As for the Sustainable Development Goals, Baker Hughes is one of the companies that follows the United Nations framework and approach. Baker Hughes is also part of the Global Compact, which means it aligns with its strategies and supports the main environmental goals, such as reducing carbon emissions, empowering local capabilities, and supporting vulnerable groups.

NEXT STEPS

The following actions are expected to be completed before 2021. To guarantee the continuity of the many benefits this event provides to participants and organizers. We also ensure to take into consideration the rest of the impressions and opinions.

- 1- Continuing to hold individual meetings with all partners.
- 2- incorporate the remarks from this webinar and include it into a policy note to be presented to the authorities
- 3- Arranging the second session of the four-part webinar series in September 2020.
- 4- Create a concept note for the advisory committee from the private sector, identify and invite representatives from private sector to be part of it.
- 5- Setting a strategy of cooperation with the private sector by the Office of the United Nations Secretary-General Representative and Resident Coordinator in the State of Kuwait to identify the common objectives and actions for further collaboration.
